

Coquitlam RCMP Officer-In-Charge, Superintendent Darren Carr

“I am both honoured and proud to step into the role of Officer-In-Charge of the Coquitlam Detachment in service of the communities, of the Kwikwetlem First Nation, the villages of Anmore and Belcarra and the cities of Port Coquitlam and Coquitlam.” Says Superintendent Carr.

“My vision is to continue to focus on our strategic priorities, which are to reduce crime, to partner with our diverse communities, to support our people and to enhance public safety. As your police service we will be transparent, accountable, inclusive and accessible. We will also be adaptive to the changing needs and complexities of policing in addressing such challenges as the impacts of crime, mental health, addictions, homelessness and youth violence.”

Superintendent Carr joined the RCMP in 2000 and has served exclusively within the Lower Mainland where he has worked frontline policing, training and major crime investigations. He first arrived in Coquitlam in 2020 where he managed general duty, traffic services and investigative services. He has regularly acted as the Officer-In-Charge and has experience in a diverse range of both operational and administrative roles.

During his career, Superintendent Carr has been recognised for his contributions to public safety, whereby he was awarded the Commanding Officer’s Commendation for bravery and the Commissioner’s Commendation for Outstanding Service. In addition, Superintendent Carr has been recognised by the Province of British Columbia and has received awards for both valour and meritorious service. Superintendent Carr is also an Accredited Team Commander, in recognition of his distinguished handling of Major Case investigations.
